USS Missouri Leads Third Fleet Into Sagami Bay South of Tokyo

Procession of American And British Naval Power Makes Triumphant Entry

Mighty Armada Carries Hand-Picked Landing Force of 10,000 Marines and Bluejackets for Yokosuka Naval Base Occupation; Sky Overhead Is Flecked with 1,200 Carrier Planes

WITH UNITED STATES THIRD FLEET IN SIGHT OF JAPAN, Monday, Aug. 27 (AP)—Proudly led by the mighty battleship Missouri, Adm. Halsey's third fleet early today steamed within sight of Japan on its triumphant parade up Tokyo bay with hand-picked landing force of 10,000 marines, and bluejackets for the Yokosuka naval base occupation.

The procession of American and British naval power spread for miles over the Pacific as we neared Sagami bay, the outer approach to the Tokyo harbor. The sky overhead was flecked with 1,200 carrier planes.

Close behind the 45,000-ton Missouri rode her sister battleship, the Iowa and the British flagship, the battleship Duke of York, with Adm. Sir Bruce Fraser, commander-in-chief of the British Pacific fleet.

Seamen and officers alike kned the warship decks, staring at the Japanese coast.

The mighty armada passed within three miles of Oshima, once heavily fortified island guarding the door into Sagami bay.

No Typhoons Encountered
Halsey's fleet made the triumphant entry on its second try. It was stopped yesterday morning almost within sight of Japan by Gen. MacArthur's postponement of surrender plans and turned around. Typhoons were given as the reason for the delay but while the sea was choppy we saw no weather of typhoon proportions as the fleet resumed the sea parade of splendor and might today. American and British flags waved majestically from the warships bristling with big guns, silent but ready if needed.

The marines and bluejackets originally were scheduled to go ashore Tuesday but now probably will land at Yokosuka Thursday.

Escorting the Missouri, the Duke of York and other major ships, were the destroyers, the fleet's "advance guard." One, the Nicholas, picked up the Japanese naval emissaries who came out on a Japanese destroyer from the Yokosuka naval base.

They boarded the Missouri where Halsey's chief of Staff, Rear Adm. Robert Carney gave them orders for helping insure the safe passage of Uraga strait into Tokyo bay.

In the parade were several veteran warships such as the South Dakota, famous in South Pacific battles and the destroyer O'Bannon. Holder of a presidential unit citation. The British battleship King George V, also was in the vanguard.

Minersweepers Are Awaited
Included in the long line of ships, which required more than six hours to pass a given point, were the carrier Cowpens, the heavy cruisers Quincy, Boston, Chicago and St. Paul; the light cruisers San Diego, Pasadena, Springfield, Wilkes Barre and San Juan and the British cruiser Newfoundland and the New Zealand cruiser Gambia. Twenty six destroyers included four British, and such famous Americans as the Twining and Cushing.

This great armada reached the north end of Sagami bay this afternoon with the Missouri first. Here they awaited the minesweeping of Uraga strait in preparations for the entrance to Tokyo bay.

Rear Adm. Oscar E. Badger commands the special occupation task force of the Third fleet carrying the marines and sailors to Yokosuka and will spearhead the entrance into Tokyo bay aboard his flagship, the cruiser Des Moines.

Zero-hour of the landing, he said, depends on how fast the mine sweepers can clear the two mile and a half wide channel and the ability of the Japanese to carry out Third fleet orders.

Canton Is Again In Chinese Hands, Reports State

CHUNGKING, Aug. 26 (AP)—Canton, great Japanese-held commercial metropolis of South China, has passed peacefully into Chinese hands, reliable reports said today as 159 Chinese military and government officials flew to Nanking to prepare for Japan's formal surrender.

Branches of the national government were said to have reopened there under the new mayor, one-legged Vice-Adm. Chan Chak.

The Chinese high command meanwhile announced that at least eight key areas throughout China were recaptured and the threat of civil war between government and Communist forces lessened.

Unofficial Chungking expressed relief at a Chungking World News report that Communist Leader Mao Tse-Tung had agreed to come to Chungking for conferences to settle differences with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

The big group of Chinese military and government men will set up forward headquarters for Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, commander of Chinese field forces. The Chungking newspaper Ta Kung Pao said the formal surrender of Japanese forces in China will take place in the pre-war Chinese capital September 3.

The mission was headed by Gen. Leng Hsin, deputy chief of staff to Gen. Ho. Gull Ho, who will later and will accept the capitulation of Japanese Commander-in-Chief Gen. Yasuji Okamura, had a long conference last night with the Nanking-bound mission.

The newspaper Ta Kung Pao said that Chinese troops scheduled to enter Northern Indo-China to accept the regional surrender of Japanese forces there would establish a military government.

The former American air base town of Laobokow was among the latest towns recaptured by Chiang's forces. The high command said Laobokow, in Northern Hopeh province, reverted to Chinese control Saturday.

On the political front, Chungking World News said Mao Tse-Tung had agreed to visit Chungking in answer to a third appeal from the Chinese government for the return of Chiang.

Under the bill, the president would submit to Congress yearly an estimate of the number of jobs needed and the number likely to be available. If private enterprise could not furnish the jobs.

Manasco's comment was in sharp contrast to the reception the proposal got in the Senate Banking committee, where a score of witnesses representing various segments of the domestic economy endorsed its principles.

Sen. Wagner (D-NY), chairman of the Banking committee, predicted the measure will reach the Senate floor without change.

110-Mile-an-Hour Tropical Storm Hits Texas Coast

Hurricane Sends Mountainous Tides over Lowland Areas

BY WILLIAM E. KEYS
CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Aug. 26 (AP)—A 110-mile-an-hour tropical hurricane struck this heavily-populated Texas coastal area tonight, sending mountainous tides over lowlands and severing communications lines with some towns.

Indications were the famous fishing resort town of Port Aransas and Aransas Pass, just north of Corpus Christi, would feel the brunt of the storm.

The Houston Weather Bureau said the coast guard and state highway patrol reported streets at Port Aransas, on Mustang island across the bay from Corpus Christi, were four feet under water at 8 p. m. EWT.

At Aransas Pass, on the mainland, the surf was said to be running board high.

No deaths or injuries had been reported in the area.

The highest peak velocity so far reported was at the Corpus Christi naval air training center, ten miles south of here, where the wind blew in gusts up to 101 miles an hour.

In Corpus Christi the maximum velocity was seventy-five miles. The barometer reading was 29.38. Shortly before 11 p. m. EWT, the city power went off for the second time during the evening.

The Weather Bureau in its 10:30 p. m. EWT advisory located the center of the storm about thirty miles east northeast of Corpus Christi and "very close to Port Aransas."

It will pass inland within the next few hours, the Bureau said.

"It is attended by winds of seventy miles per hour or more extending outward as far as fifty miles to the east and north of the center, and by winds up to 110 miles per hour over a small area," the advisory read.

"The center of the hurricane will pass inland near Port Aransas before midnight tonight, but hurricane winds will occur over a considerable area along the coast and heavy squalls may be expected as far east as Lake Charles, La., by morning."

Hurricane warnings remained displayed from Corpus Christi to Galveston and storm warnings north of Galveston to Lake Charles.

Chiang Receives Russian Support Under New Pact

Treaty Probably Will Bring End to Civil War Threat in China

CHUNGKING, Aug. 26 (AP)—The Chinese government announced tonight the terms of an historic, thirty-year Russian-Chinese friendship treaty binding Russia to give aid to China solely through the Chungking government—to the exclusion of the Northern China Communist regime — and providing for complete Russian recognition of Chinese sovereignty in Manchuria.

The pact was viewed here as likely to effect a peaceful settlement of Chungking-Chinese Communist differences which had threatened civil war.

Ending long years of either open or implied political strain between the two great Asiatic powers, the treaty provided for its own renewal automatically for "an unlimited period" unless, within a year of its expiration date, one signatory notified the other that it desired to bring the agreement to an end. If it is automatically renewed, it can be terminated only through one year's notice by either nation.

Main points of the pact and correlated agreements:

1—Russia to give military supplies and moral support to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government.

2—Russia to withdraw from Japan's stolen empire of Manchuria within three months after Japan's formal surrender.

3—Russia to keep hands off China's internal affairs.

4—The Manchurian city of Dairen to be established as a free port, open to all nations, but administered by China.

5—The key Manchurian harbor city of Port Arthur to be used jointly by Russia and China as a naval base.

6—The Chinese Eastern and Southern Manchurian railroads to be operated jointly by Russia and China.

7—China to recognize the independence of Outer Mongolia if a plebiscite there confirms the people's desire for independence.

8—Russia to respect Outer Mongolia's political independence and territorial integrity.

9—Russia to avoid interference in the internal affairs of Sinkiang province, between Mongolia and Tibet, which embraces Chinese Turkistan.

The agreement was signed in Moscow, Aug. 14 and followed negotiations in Moscow between Chinese Premier T. V. Soong and Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov.

GETS JAP "CITATION"

CAPT. DANIEL SHAW, Poteau, Okla., is probably the first American soldier to receive a "citation" from the Japs in this war. Forced down Luzon, Shaw refused to give information to the enemy when captured. Shortly after he was freed with a note to his commanding officer saying that he was an excellent military man, "strict and admirable" for refusing to divulge information.

Army Will Draft 50,000 Monthly; Navy Cuts Quota

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—The army wants 50,000 new men each month for the present, regardless of whether Japan is occupied peacefully, the War department said today.

At the same time, Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said September draft calls would be for 63,000 men—50,000 for the army and 13,000 for the navy. The navy calls, he told a reporter, would represent a sharp reduction from the 25,000 early congressional action to discontinue the war.

The War department issued a statement which said any cut in the 50,000-a-month draft rate, would depend upon the rate at which men volunteer for duty in occupational forces.

But the continued drafting of men, especially younger ones, appeared headed for some opposition on Capitol Hill, where the House Military Affairs committee is slated to discuss revision of the Selective Service Act tomorrow.

Containing the military situation no longer warrants the taking of youths of 18 and 19 years, Rep. Shaffer (R-Mich) said he would seek early congressional action to discontinue their induction.

In announcing that peaceful occupation of Japan would bring no reduction in the 50,000 men Selective Service calls, the War department said, "we must have a new army—volunteers and recent inductees—ready to assume the entire burden of occupation by the time the present wartime army can be demobilized. The only alternative is to hold men now in the army who have had long and arduous service for additional extended periods."

Japan Abolishes War Restrictions

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26 (AP)—War-time production shackles have been stricken from Japanese industry, Tokyo radio said today in reversion theme broadcasts which also advised Nipponese women to study, work and produce more children.

Domestic Japanese news agency reported Premier Prince Hagashi-Kuni and other government leaders would confer with the leaders of the Dai Nippon Political Association tomorrow in preparation for the opening Sept. 1 of the extraordinary session of the Diet.

Kitchen and domestic equipment soon will be available in Japanese stores, said the radio report telling of the removal of restrictions on the manufacture of leather and metal goods to speed reappearing of long-needed peacetime items.

Jap Emissaries Are Given Instructions after Being Transferred to Flagship

1,000 Carrier Planes Drop Food and Medicine for Allied Prisoners; MacArthur, Ready To Land Thursday in First Wave of Occupation Army, Announces that U. S. Troops Will Occupy Southern Korea

MANILA, Monday, Aug. 27 (AP)—Adm. Halsey, aboard the mighty battleship Missouri, led his third fleet into Sagami bay today, corresponding with the fleet reported, Gen. MacArthur simultaneously announced that American troops would occupy the Southern half of Korea next Sunday.

MacArthur himself plans to land in Japan Thursday at the head of the first airborne wave of an occupation army expected to number a half-million men within six months. Landing of the naval forces will be timed to coincide with that of MacArthur.

Halsey's entry into Sagami bay followed by only two hours the arrival aboard his flagship, the battleship Missouri, of Japanese emissaries, who came out to receive instructions for welcoming marine and army forces to the island of Yokosuka naval base, in outer Tokyo bay, Thursday.

Nipponese Are Searched
Broadcasters said Halsey did not speak to the Japanese emissaries reported to be two officers, thirteen sailors, presumably to direct the ships into the bay and six interpreters.

The Japanese, said these reports, were searched although they said they were not carrying arms. They were stripped of their Samurai swords for the duration of the conference, which was with Rear Adm. Robert B. Carney, Halsey's chief of staff.

Meanwhile, more than 1,000 carrier planes flew over all of Southern Japan, dropping food and medicine for Allied prisoners of war.

The Japanese boarded the Missouri forty-five to fifty miles off the Japanese coast, out of sight of the mainland. They went to the fleet in a small Nipponese destroyer, were transferred to the United States destroyer Nicholas and then taken to the Missouri.

Gen. MacArthur, ready to land Thursday in the first wave of an occupation army expected to swell to a half million men inside six months, announced for the first time that United States troops also would occupy the southern half of Korea—long ruled by Japanese overlords.

MacArthur told the Japanese to be prepared to surrender all the Ryukyus—stepping stone islands to Japan—to Gen. Stilwell, commander of the United States Tenth army.

Under the supreme commander's orders, the Japanese were required to be ready for the surrender of Korea, the Ryukyus and all forces in the Philippines "or immediately."

Mountaineer Learns U. S. Fought, Won War

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26 (AP)—Ernest Denks, 28-year-old Kentucky mountaineer, has found out that the United States was at war with Germany and Japan, but Japan had surrendered before he made the startling discovery and registered for the draft.

Denks told his draft board that there weren't newspapers or radios in the hills near Moorehead, Ky., where he has spent his life. A friend told him he might get a job in Los Angeles. He has found out "more durned things" have come out of the war.

China May Be Expected To Support U. S. Plan To Acquire Pacific Bases

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS
Associated Press News Analyst
Unreserved support from China, America's principal partner in the Far East, may be expected for our program to acquire and hold naval and military bases through the Central Pacific.

Further, China, if called upon, doubtless would assist the move by contributing sites from her own domains, if our authorities decide we need additional bases on the China coast to complete the chain.

China sees nothing aggressive or imperialistic in this program. She knows she has nothing to fear from America. Instead, she will welcome the bases as added safeguards to her own peace and security.

Multiple "Ends" of War Present Federal Lawyers with Puzzlers

BY FRANCIS M. LEMAY
WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—Putting a legal end to the war is not as simple as saying "cease fire," government lawyers found today.

Technically it will end many times before the final, formal peace. And the multiple "ends" are presenting federal legal minds with a series of puzzles.

On a determination of the dates of "cessation of hostilities" and "termination of the war" depend the life of war statutes governing things all the way from the time of day to the power to conscript a man for military service.

Planes Sent for Ex-POWs

CHUNGKING, Aug. 26 (AP)—American army headquarters said today a B-24 and a C-47 transport had flown to Mukden to evacuate Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright and other men whom the Japanese held prisoners of war. The planes carried 5,500 pounds of supplies.

The president will not so proclaim. Such a proclamation would put an end to the draft law, by which fresh troops are expected to be sent to the Pacific as occupation forces to relieve those who have been doing the fighting.

It appeared likely that the "official" cessation of hostilities might be delayed until Congress has had time to put new cutoff dates on some laws.

Ed Thompson's torrid two-base wallop to right field scoring Wilmer Hyde from second base in the last of the thirteenth inning broke up a thrilling pitching duel between the veteran Pat Corrigan and the youthful Mel Nee and gave the Loaconing Republic Club a 5 to 4 decision over the Centerville Reds yesterday in a Pen-Mar League contest in Loaconing before a gathering of approximately 500 persons.

Nee set the stage for his own defeat after one down in the thirteenth which proved unlucky for him, when he hit Hyde with a pitched ball. Cecil Warwick lined a single to left, advancing Nee to second. Then Thompson gave the largest crowd of the season something to cheer about when he came through with the game-winning double.

The Loaconing catcher came near putting the game on ice in the twelfth when he led off with a scorching triple to right. Nee purposely passed Blaine McKenzie and Jimmie Schramm and then proceeded to pull out of a deep hole by fanning both Taylor and Gardner and forcing Corrigan to hoist a fly to V. Nave.

McKenzie Ties the Score
The first time that Thompson got into Mr. Nee's hair was in the home half of the ninth with Coney Taylor 4-3 and two hands retired, he doubled to right and scored the run that sent the game into extra innings when Blaine McKenzie hammered a two bagger to right. Schramm followed with a line single to left but McKenzie was cut down at the plate on a nice throw by V. Nave.

Pat Corrigan, the Loaconing pitcher, who used up several pouches of "chewing tobacco" during the hectic struggle, shared the spotlight with Thompson in the Loaconing triumph which enabled the G. O. P. outfit to remain right on the heels of the pace setting Queen City second half championship team.

Paddy yielded four runs to the Reds in the first five innings then settled down and pitched like the Corrigan of ten years ago. He twirled eight scoreless innings, yielding only five hits and scored the winning run in the eighth.

Pat Pulls Out of Hole
The toughest spot that Corrigan got into was the ninth when he was down on Nee's walk. Street's life on Hyde's boot of a double play ball and Dave Rose's infield hit. Pat took another chew, tightened his belt, forced Mickey Taylor to foul, and then pitched to Pete Cook back to the bench after swinging wildly at three fast pitches.

In spite of the fact that he yielded seventeen hits, Nee pitched remarkably well in suffering his second defeat after eight victories. He was the only pitcher in the first six stanzas when he limited the home team to one run on six well placed hits and marked up five of his nine strikeouts. His smart pitching in the twelfth was a classic.

Centerville scored two runs in the first inning when Street opened the game with a triple to left, scored on Mickey's single and the latter completed the circuit on Pete Cook's sacrifice and Alton Nave's base hit. McKenzie's single, Schramm's double and Taylor's infield hit produced Coney's first run in the second.

Local Pounded on Nee's Walk
The locals pounded out twelve hits, three of the blows being credited to Robinette. Keyser obtained eleven safeties, Hoover, Pezanne and Kirtley getting two blows each. The third game of the series will be played in Keyser on September 9.

Association Urges Plan To Protect Small Businesses

Retail Grocers Suggest State-wide Conference To Discuss Program

Members of the Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland will recommend to the state association that representatives of the food industry in every part of the state hold a conference to work out a definite program to protect small businesses in the food industry, George P. Garlitz, president, said last night.

Garlitz headed a delegation of nine members of the association who conferred with Rep. J. Glenn Beall at the latter's office in Frostburg at 11:30 a. m. yesterday. Plans for the proposed state-wide conference were discussed at the meeting.

Rep. Beall said that when a committee is selected at the conference, he will make arrangements for the members to present the program to the Small Business committee of the House of Representatives.

Favor Anderson

The delegation also asked Rep. Beall to support any movement for the appointment of Clinton Anderson, secretary of Agriculture, as "food czar" if control of food production and distribution is consolidated under one government agency.

Garlitz said that the Senate defeated a House amendment two months ago regarding such a consolidation, but added that the measure will be brought before the Senate again when Congress reconvenes early next month.

A discussion of federal control of food supplies was also held at the meeting, and the delegates agreed that they are in favor of such control if it will insure equal distribution to small businesses as well as to large food corporations.

It was pointed out that large corporations can afford to buy up supplies under present conditions, and that federal control might enable small retail grocers to protect their food supplies.

Oppose Food Subsidies

The representatives of the association said they were opposed to subsidies in the food industry because they discouraged free enterprise by putting the persons accepting the subsidies under an obligation to the government.

Rep. Beall told the delegation that farmers in Montgomery, Frederick and Washington counties are also opposed to such subsidies.

Urging Rep. Beall to support all measures for the betterment of small businesses, Garlitz pointed out that this country was built by the owners of small businesses.

"Those in power must realize that such men must be given at least an even break with the large corporations," he stated.

The members attending Alvin Terrent, Lonsacon; R. H. Yokum, Cresapton; George Dressman, LaVale; and M. P. McDade, Cumberland. All are members of the board of governors of the association.

Others who attended were Frank J. Dressman, LaVale; Raymond R. Shade, Cumberland; active past president; Luther Hutter and Lynn Beightol, both of Cumberland; and J. G. Jackson, secretary.

MRS. CRAWFORD RITES

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Magdalen Crawford, 62, widow of David A. Crawford, who died Saturday evening at her home, 653 Baker street, will be conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home.

The Rev. George E. Baughman, pastor of First Methodist church, will officiate and interment will be in Hillcrest cemetery.

She was a native of Ohio and a daughter of the late John and Martha Albright.

Mrs. Crawford is survived by six sons, Charles A. Edgar and Leroy Crawford, all of this city; Harold Crawford, with the navy in the South Pacific, and three daughters, Mrs. Milton Brant, LaVale; Mrs. "Blin" P. Sherrick, Laing avenue, and Mrs. Pearl Dick, Baltimore.

MRS. SWEARINGEN RITES

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie B. Swearingen, 70, wife of J. B. Swearingen, a former resident of this city, who died of a heart attack at her home in Connelville, Pa., Saturday morning, will be conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her son, Robert A. Arthur, 811 Shriver avenue.

The Rev. William A. Eisenberger, pastor of First Presbyterian church, will officiate. Interment will be in Hillcrest cemetery.

Mrs. Swearingen is also survived by another son, Arthur G. Swearingen, this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Frances W. Wise, Clearfield, Pa.

Two brothers, Fred Wilson, Frostburg, and Robert Wilson, Dunbar, Pa., and one sister, Mrs. George B. Bilymer, Baltimore, also survive.

MRS. GILBERT COSNER

Mrs. Edna Cosner, 62, wife of Gilbert Cosner, Green Spring, W. Va., died Saturday afternoon in Memorial hospital where she had been a patient since August 10.

GRASS HUTS AND NATIVES—The grass hut pictured above was the jumpoff point at Gona, Papua, for an eight-day patrol into the interior of New Guinea under Col. Arch Roosevelt. Upper left is a profile of a Gona native who was a Christian and had tended Father Bennett's widely known mission garden at Gona before it was turned into a battlefield and Father Bennett mysteriously disappeared. Upper right, is a native named "Bogimbo" who was quite a "sport." The red flower in his hair advertises the fact that he wants a wife. Once married, natives replace the red flower with a white one.

Shrine City Club Moves to Jenvey Building Location

Extensive remodeling of the Jenvey building, at Harrison and South Center streets, new headquarters of the All Ghan Shrine City Club, will be completed around October 1 with the club practically moved into its new quarters already.

George W. Brown, president said last night.

Brown reported last night that practically everything had been completed in the remodeling program with the exception of the interior decorating and that will be finished by October 1. Ralph L. Rizer is chairman of the house committee in charge of the decorating.

Purchase price for the building was $28,000, according to revenue stamps on the deed and Brown said last night that the total outlay would be about $35,000.

A feature of the new club will be a large drill room and ball room, ninety-six by thirty-five feet, on the third floor. All office space partitions were ripped out to turn the floor into a large club room.

The second floor will include lounging and social rooms and storage space. The recorder's office will be on the first floor, although the Commercial Printing Company will still occupy its present space.

Formerly located on North Liberty street over the Liberty tavern, the new clubhouse will give the organization much more space.

Brown said last night, "It's something we've been waiting for a long time and at last we've got it. We're practically moved in right now."

A G's PACIFIC DIARY Man, Wife Escape When Train Hits Car on Crossing

By JAMES B. CRAIG

May 10, 1942
We started inland this morning at daybreak from Gona. The patrol is for the purpose of mapping the inland area (open traverse) on our left flank to secure any arms the enemy may have left behind, to investigate the condition of the natives and to gain all other pertinent information.

The carriers strapped their loads on long poles with vines and when they started out gave loud yells which Col. Arch Roosevelt said reminded him of a Yale war cry. The lineup was as follows: three PIB scouts on the point with Sgt. O'Brien 75 yds. ahead; Tom Yoeman, Angou (native administrator); the colonel; Sgts. Burns and Murphy; the twelve carriers; Cpl. Johnson and myself.

Weather: very foggy at daybreak with the Owen-Stanleys completely obscured. Fog cleared around 1000 hours and sun came out but the jungle overgrowth over the trail dripped all day. Trail slippery but not muddy. Johnson elated by the thousands of butterflies and moths we passed through in the dips at small stream crossings where the jungle overhead would break away. Was very beautiful with the sun glinting through on hundreds of various colored butterflies. Some of the birdwings measured as much as eight inches from wingtip to wingtip. Blues, oranges and browns seemed to predominate. Johnson said he planned to catch some and have a good meal on this patrol as in his opinion it wouldn't amount to much otherwise.

"Smelled the Enemy"

Reached Hambrata at 0600 hours (about twenty miles according to Johnson's and Murphy's paces). In paces, Johnson transferred pebbles from one hand to another to keep count but Murphy says he remembers it in his head. O'Brien highly pleased with Yoeman's PIB boys. He says they held up the point once when they "smelled the enemy." He didn't believe it but when they scouted around they found an old dump where the enemy had left clothing, etc., in their flight. O'Brien claims they smelled the dump scent, five yards away. Hard to believe.

Yoeman had his butt boy, Wanu, a Rabual native, lay out a white tablecloth and quite good-looking silverware for chow. When we looked surprised, Yoeman said he did it to impress the natives. The village women brought baskets of fruit consisting of bananas (the big red ones), paw paws, lemons, oranges and yams. The women's heads were shaved and one had ashes on her head as her husband had only recently died. Yoeman, who won't let us buy anything, gave each of the two sticks of rope tobacco for a heating basket of fruit. Yoeman said O'Brien made a remark to that effect and Roosevelt gave him hell.

After dinner, Roosevelt lay on his back twenty minutes quoting Shakespeare which he knows by the yard. He said his father made all the boys memorize rafts of Shakespeare and now he actually likes it. Yoeman told us he was a member of a large-ton family of an old Scot clan and had been knocking around in New Guinea for fifteen years. He's a wiry chap and struts around these natives as if he were God-Almighty. He has a warrant officer's rating in the AIF.

Yoeman showed us the dictionary he is preparing—in both the Motu and Orakiva dialects. Very few people know how poetical the language really is, he said. For example the Motu word for dew is "hisil" which translated means "star tears." The Orakiva word for "go" is "boi" translated, "the sky sings out."

Crossed Sticks Superstition

O'Brien asked why the point scout insisted on bringing out the trail on a white. Yoeman said he noticed two crossed sticks at that point. No native will cross a line of crossed sticks as it's taboo. Sometimes they try to catch people they dislike by carefully laying a line of crossed sticks near their front door.

these harvest orgies the warriors sometimes get tight on fermented coconut juice and brag how they will kill the "government" the next time he calls.

It would be forgotten, like most drunken statements, except for the fact that when the natives are informed that the Angou is on his way in the women say "O.K. here he comes, let's see you do what you said."

So the warrior, prodded into it, will send out an emissary to inform the Angou not to venture into the village. Yoeman said when so informed he always laughs heartily. Then he says, "Tell this tin pot warrior that I will arrive in his town at 0100 hours tomorrow, sharp." There is a reason behind this. When the emissary returns, the first question the warrior asks is, "Well, how did he take it?" When Yoeman informed that the Angou laughed up roars, the warrior is somewhat taken aback. Waiting until tomorrow is also part of the system as in all probability it gives the warrior a sleepless night and time to ponder things over.

A Dead Shot

Then, the next day, the Angou will walk boldly into the village without any weapons showing. Nine times out of ten the bragger at the banquet will have done a fadeout but occasionally he'll be waiting for him. Then, at the first act of hostility, Yoeman draws a forty-five and shoots the native dead. He's a dead shot and he explains that when it's necessary to shoot he wants the natives to realize that the white man's thunder is deadly and sure.

At this point, Everybody spread their ponchos and the colonel gave a few instructions and took Sgt. O'Brien to one side for a moment.

Returning, O'Brien politely asked Korea, one of the native scouts, if he would mind moving his poncho a bit farther away as the grease on his mop of hair drew the bugs. The Korea did. Yoeman predicted rain the next day but said if we made good time he might be able to arrange a hunting trip on the side at Ungahou.
